

Males: Education and Poverty, 2010

Generally, the highest levels of poverty fall within the Southwest region of the US. A high number of bachelors degrees also fall within this region when California and Texas are included.

